CONCEPT NOTE

The sacred traditions of Indian Shastraic knowledge, intricately interwoven within the fabric of Vedic literature as subtle seeds, have gracefully evolved across the annals of time, emerging as an everlasting wellspring of societal prosperity, akin to the perennial Akshaya Vat. Even in the present epoch, their nectarine potency endows them with the profound capacity to illuminate and guide society's path. Within the realm of contemporary existence, the humans of this era can harness their transformative potential, both for their individual self-advancement and the collective welfare of humanity. The imperative lies in meticulously examining these profound legacies in the light of modern contemporary contexts, and embracing their wisdom through a discerning lens. Thus, at the forefront of this scholarly symposium of Vedic scholars, the focal point rests upon exploring and elaborating the quintessence of Indian Shatric scriptures.

International Seminar

It gives us immense pleasure to inform you that Department of Sanskrit, University of Delhi is organizing a two day International Seminar on भारतीय शास्त्रपरम्परा: सामयिक सन्दर्भ (Indian Shastric Tradition: Contemporary Relevance) in collaboration with Central Sanskrit University, New Delhi on 22-23 July 2023. The prime objective of the seminar is to highlight the continuity and diversity of Indian Shastric tradition and to bring out its contemporary relevance. The seminar aims at engaging the mutual exchange of ideas. It will focus on exploring the various aspects, facets and scholarly contributions of Prof. Shashi Prabha Kumar, an internationally renowned scholar of Indian thought in general and Sanskrit studies in particular.

The seminar is going to be addressed and actively participated by well-known scholars from India and abroad.
